A SINGAPORE DIVORCE CASE. WIFE'S PATHETIC LETTER.

Mr. Justice Gordon at Dublin has recently granted the prayer of the petitioner, John William Schaff, for a divorce a mensa et thoro from his wife, Kathleen Dorothy, nee Fitzmaurice, on the ground of her misconduct with Francis James Horton, whose profession was not stated. The petitioner and the respondent lived in Ireland before they were married. At the outbreak of the war the petitioner took up duty as surgeon probationer on H.M.S. Dolphin, which was cruising around the coast of Scotland. Miss Fitzmaurice went to live in Scotland with the view to their being married, and they were married on the 10th September, 1915, before the Registrar at Glasgow. After that they lived together at different places in Scotland. They returned to Dublin, he with the object of taking his degree in Public Health. Having taken his degree in June, 1918, both husband and wife went out to the Federated Malay States, where apparently they lived quite happily until June, 1921. There were two children of the marriage, a boy and a girl. Mrs. Schaff had a previous marriage, and she, with the direction of her husband, went to Singapore to study medicine. She became a paying guest at the house of a lady. The petitioner followed her to Singapore, and they took up house together, he having obtained the post of Port Health Officer there. The trouble began, said counsel, in November, 1920, so far as the petitioner knew it. His wife introduced to him Francis J. Horton, and, at the wife's suggestion, Horton became a paying guest at their quarters. Very soon the husband had reason to complain of the conduct of Horton, and he ordered him to leave the house. Mrs. Schaff objected, and said that if Horton left she would leave with him. That was on the 25th of January, 1921. Two days afterwards, when the petitioner came home in the evening, his wife was gone, and he found the following unsigned note in her hand-writing:—

"DEAR JACK. This is just to bid you good-bye; and though my blessing may avail little, God bless you. I believe there must be a God, so very bitterly am I punished for my sin. If ever I have wronged you in the past, as well as for the unforgivable wrong I am doing you now, I shall expect them all. I have no illusions as to what I am doing. There isn't any colour about it—he has seen to that. Perhaps it was just of him. To what I am doing now, the only happy termination seems death, so many people will blame. I am left with no friend anywhere, so far as I can see, but I must take the rough with the smooth. My eyes are blind as I write. Take care of my Sheila, my poor, wee, golden-haired girlie. I pray I may never have another child, and I hope I may hear of her some time. Oh, Jack, there are some memories of our life together. How can I bear to think of the sea-gull or the jungle? I do hope you will be successful, and that some day you can forget. Good-bye, my poor Jack, you have always been pitiful to me. Good-bye again, and try to forgive me."

The evidence in the case, namely, that of the petitioner and two witnesses, was taken by commission before the Supreme Court of the Straits Settlements on the 10th of last May. The original petition and citation were destroyed in the Four Courts, but copies of them were produced by Messrs. Beauchamp and Orr, who were acting for the petitioner, who, it was stated, was 27 years of age.

The evidence of the manager of the hotel in which the respondent and Horton stayed together, and that of another person, having been read, and there being no answer to the petition and no appearance for the respondent, Mr. Justice Gordon made the order as above stated.

THE "EGYPT" DISASTER. ADMIRAL DEFENDS CAPTAIN COLLYER.

Admiral Noel in a letter to the London Press describes the Egypt Court's decision as harsh. Captain Collyer, he says, deserves sympathy. There was no personal failure on the contrary he acted according to the best traditions of English seamanship. Organisation is reckoning expected to avert catastrophe, which is impossible. Making a scapegoat of a brave and loyal Captain is no remedy.

"EGYPT" CAPTAIN'S DEFENCE.
Captain Collyer, in a letter of thanks to Admiral Noel for his defence, declares that he has been dismissed by men who do not seem to know what panic means under the conditions he underwent; also that he was responsible for the loss of life is wrong. Captain Collyer declares that his action in jumping into the last boat and forcing some of the occupants to use the oars at the point of the revolver saved 85 to 70 lives. He declares that panic is not to be averted by lessons in boat drill. The result of the enquiry will only lead other commanders in times of crisis to neglect their real duty, which is to find out the extent of the damage and discover the actual position of the ship for wirelessing, etc., all of which he did for the sake of supervising and helping the boats, which is not the first care of a captain.

KOWLOON THEATRE.

Besides the screening of a film version of Zorro Grey's "The U.P. Trail," which is in itself a very big event, the Kowloon Theatre offered last night and will offer again to-night and to-morrow night, a special attraction in the shape of a series of ballet numbers by Miss Juri Thomas, an accomplished danseuse. Her classical dances, to music furnished by Professor Valdemiroff, are meeting with a deservedly enthusiastic reception.

PEKING'S MONEY TROUBLE. ARRANGEMENTS TO TIDE OVER FESTIVAL.

Reuter's correspondent at Peking, writing on September 27th, said:—

It is semi-officially stated that the Government has virtually completed its financial arrangements to meet the obligations of the Mid-Autumn Festival and also until the end of the year.

The Eleventh Year Loan will be divided into four equal monthly lots. The Banks will take six per cent. discount, so that each monthly instalment will yield to the Government $2,100,000.

It is proposed to issue debentures to the value of $2,000,000 for a period of 10 months at 10 per cent. interest, secured on the Salt Surplus, which will be used for Mid-Autumn expenditure. It will thus be possible to make substantial payments of arrears of salary on settlement day while the monthly instalments of the loan will enable payment of 70 per cent. of military and police expenses and also salaries of Members of Parliament, leaving a balance of $500,000 to be derived from other sources.

After the festival the Government intends to make definite proposals to the Tientsin regarding disbandment of troops.

SEAMEN'S UNION MEETING AT SHANGHAI. GOLD MEDALS FOR STRIKE SERVICES.

Owing to the difficulty of securing a suitable place for the holding of an inaugural meeting the Shanghai Branch of the Chinese National Seamen's Union did not hold its first meeting until September 25th, when the Union was formally inaugurated in its office on Broadway. Over 200 persons representing the Head Branch of the Chinese National Seamen's Union, the Shanghai Branch Union, the Swatow Branch Union, the Canton Branch Union, the Chinese National Labour Organization, the Branch Association of the Chinese National Mechanics Association, the Chinese Labour Organisation in Hongkong, the Amalgamated Association of Chinese Labour Organization in Hongkong, the Branch Office of the Hunan Labour Organization and delegates from employees of over twenty Chinese steamship companies were present. The meeting was convened at 2 p.m. The ceremony opened with a salute of the national flag. The Chairman of the Branch Union made a report on his work in organizing the Branch Union here and what he had done during the recent seamen's strike in Shanghai. He emphasized the importance of unity.

Gold medals were subsequently distributed among those seamen who had rendered invaluable service during the recent strike. —Shanghai Mercury.

THE TARIFF REVISION COMMISSION.

BRITISH DELEGATES DEPART FROM SHANGHAI.

The following paragraphs are taken from the N.C. Daily News:—

We understand that Mr. H. H. Fox, C.M.G., H.M. Commercial Counsellor of Legation, who has been the senior British Delegate to the Tariff Revision Commission which has just completed its work, will shortly proceed to Peking in connection with the special conference which is to be held early next year. During Mr. Fox's absence from Shanghai the Commercial Counsellor's office will be in the charge of Mr. H. J. Brett, who is expected back from Home leave by the Hogazaki Maru, due here about October 23rd.

Mr. A. H. George, who has been assistant British delegate on the Tariff Revision Commission, is leaving on Sunday (Oct. 1st) for Tainanfu, where he will take charge of the Consulate-General during the absence of Mr. Betram Giles at Weihaiwei. Mr. George was yesterday entertained to luncheon at the Shanghai Club by members of the Piece Goods Subcommittee of the British Chamber of Commerce, the members of which met to show their appreciation in connection with the Tariff Commission. Mr. L. M. Beyrath, president, and in a felicitous speech, voiced the feelings of the members, and offered their thanks for his efforts. Mr. George suitably replied.

"SHERRY"

THE STORY OF A YOUNG MAN AND HIS MONEY.

A fool and his money, says the proverb, are soon parted. From the moment he got his hands upon his little heritage of half a million odd dollars there was no serious effort made by the young hero of "Sherry," to-day's attraction at the Coronet, to reveal himself as an exception to the rule.

Sheridan Redpath he was called, and well was he surmised for he pointed things red wherever his primrose pathway led him. In the picture he is in the midst of a final "celebration," handing over his last dime to a friendly bar tender, who makes for the woods, there to sober up and ponder on past misdeeds and future prospects. Romance and adventure follow his way. He rescues a maiden in distress and his chivalry is rewarded, for, despite discouragements, he works hard, gets himself a partnership and makes his mark. The comedy element predominates throughout the picture, but there is a touch of mystery about it as well and some brie but entirely satisfying love scenes.

DR. SUN YAT-SEN AND THE SOVIET. CHARGE OF WISHING TO BRING COMMUNISM INTO CHINA FLATLY DENIED.

The N.C. Daily News of September 20th says:—

The following statement has been issued by Dr. Sun Yat-sen in reference to a statement which has been reproduced in a section of the local Press from a Hongkong paper to the effect that he "has been conspiring to bring about an alliance between China, Germany and Russia, based on Bolshevik ideals."

Dr. Sun's attention has been specially called to the words italicized, which draw from him the reply that they constitute a foolish and false statement. While he feels himself under no obligation to answer charges made in an organ of certain well-known interests in the South, Dr. Sun says that the allegation is foolish because no one could really believe that there existed in China the same historical and economic conditions which have produced the sequence of events in Russia known as Bolshevism. And the statement was false because Dr. Sun had never planned, nor even thought of the possibility of transforming China into a Communist state. A glance into his book on the "International Development of China" would show that he held very strongly that the effective development and use of China's incalculable resources necessitated the co-operation of foreign capital and foreign technical assistance. He had made repeated offers for such co-operation in America, British and other quarters. Dr. Sun makes a specific reference to Germany and to Russia. In his view the disarmament of Germany and the abolition of her extraterritorial jurisdiction in this country have placed her, so far as China is concerned, in the category of non-aggressive Powers.

NOTHING TO FEAR FROM RUSSIA.

It is also the view of Dr. Sun that one of the greatest dangers in the past to the political independence and territorial integrity of China has been removed with the rise of Soviet Russia. And as long as the Soviet Government continues true and loyal to its non-imperialistic policy, a Republican China has nothing to fear from Russia.

Dr. Sun's considered view is that China, at the present stage of her modernization stands in great need of assistance from Powers who would treat and deal with her as an equal and a full-sovereign state. He believes that Germany and Russia are now so circumstanced and governed that China could treat with them on terms of equality. He is, therefore, in favour of a policy looking towards a closer rapprochement with these two Powers. He does not consider such a policy would militate against the legitimate interests of any Power that desires a strong and united China. At any rate it is a policy which would serve the best interests of a non-monarchical and non-reactionary China. That is the dominating consideration which inspires him. He might be dubbed pro-German or pro-Bolshevik. Those epithets of hate and revenge have no terrors for him, though they have unfortunately deterred many from doing their duty as sane and real lovers of their country and of their fellow men.

CERTAIN CORRESPONDENCE.

Dr. Sun finally refers to certain correspondence which, he understood, Chen Chiung-ming had caused to be published in Hongkong for an obvious purpose. He says that he is not called upon to give any explanation, save to Parliament, as to any act or things done by him as the head of the Constitutional Government at Canton. If, however, it is alleged that the correspondence in question proved that he had been conspiring for an alliance between China, Germany and Russia based on Bolshevik ideals, he would suggest that the correspondence itself be read in the original Chinese. An authorized English translation is under consideration. But even the rather poor English version published in one of Chen Chiung-ming's organs in the South showed that the allegation was unwarrantable and was to be ascribed to propagandist zeal.

DEMENTI FROM BERLIN.

BERLIN, September 28th.

With reference to the Press report with regard to the alleged negotiations between an emissary of the former South China Government and the former German Minister to China, Admiral von Hintze, for an alliance between Russia, Germany and China, it is officially stated that the German Government knows nothing of such negotiations or of the allegedly official mission of Admiral von Hintze to Russia. Admiral von Hintze himself declares that he did not conduct any negotiations for such an alliance. —Reuter.

U.S. ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF COMMERCE.

ENTERTAINED BY THE CHINESE COMMUNITY.

Mr. C. H. Huston, Assistant Secretary to the U.S. Department of Commerce, was entertained by the Chinese community at the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, yesterday afternoon. Tea was served in Chinese fashion and afterwards a private reception was held at Sir Robert Ho Tung's residence.

Mr. Li Po Kwai, Chairman of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, presided over the public gathering and those present to welcome the visitor (who was accompanied by the U.S. Consul-General, Mr. W. Holt Gale) included: Sir Robert Ho Tung, the Hon. Mr. Chow Shou Son, the Hon. Mr. Ng Hon Tsz, Mr. Ho Fook and many leading Chinese merchants. The visitors also included Lieut. Col. H. M. Evans and the Vice-Consul (Mr. McCafferty).

The Chairman, speaking in Chinese, said the occasion was one to which Chinese merchants attached much importance, inasmuch as it was a rare event to receive in Hongkong so eminent a guest as the Assistant Secretary of Commerce of the United States of America. They welcomed the opportunity of manifesting the friendly feeling they entertained for the American nation. China was grateful to the United States for much substantial help in the past and was looking to her, as to Britain, for even greater assistance in the future in developing her industries and trade. It was a happy augury for China that important officials from the United States should gain a first hand knowledge of her real economic conditions and potentialities, her natural resources and her organisation of capital and labour. The Chairman referred to Mr. Huston's remarks, in his address to the American community, on radio-telegraphy and telephony, and remarked that this new scientific development would do more than any other to bring the nations closer together and unite them into one great brotherhood. He looked forward to the day when a Hongkong merchant would be able to place an order in America by wireless telephony when that could be done, not only would international trade materially increase, but most international misunderstandings could be dissipated by a frank and friendly talk by phone.

The Chinese merchants of Hongkong (he continued) considered that, in assisting to promote trade between Hongkong and countries outside the British Empire, they were serving the best interests of the Colony. There was room in Hongkong for all, and the Colony had gained its present proud position by having thrown open its doors to all nations of the world. He was particularly impressed with Mr. Huston's remark, the other day, that the United States did not want to develop a greater volume of trade without regard for other nations already in the field. Such a liberal policy was bound to have a healthy effect upon Chinese international commerce, and it was because of such a policy, enunciated by Britain and the United States towards China, that the Chinese were now looking to these great sections of the English-speaking race to assist them in their task of reform. Mr. Li Po Kwai concluded with a tribute to the Consul-General, Mr. Gale, whose sterling qualities had won the respect of all sections of the community. (Applause).

A translation, in English, of the address was then read by Mr. R. H. KOTWALL. Mr. Huston, in acknowledgment, said that, just as the outside world might form the impression that business in the United States was entirely dislocated by strikes—which, as a matter of fact, affected only a comparatively small section of the community, so it might be supposed, that China, was at a standstill on account of internecine strife. On the contrary, however, in the numerous places in China that he had visited, prosperity and contentment were in evidence.

The Hon. Mr. Chow Shou Son assured Mr. Huston that, although time did not permit a larger gathering in his honour, the assembly expressed a welcome on behalf of the whole Chinese community. His friendly sentiments were appreciated and reciprocated by all present.

Mr. GALE said he could not allow the extremely kind reference to him by the Chairman to go without acknowledgment. During the year and a half that he had been in Hongkong, he had learned to have a sincere respect for the many admirable traits of the Chinese residents, from the cheerfulness, good humour and industry (Continued at foot of next column.)

COMPANY MEETING.

THE DOUGLAS STEAMSHIP CO. LIMITED.

The thirty-ninth ordinary general meeting of shareholders of the Douglas Steamship Co., Ltd., was held at the offices of the Company, yesterday, at noon.

Mr. H. P. White presided and there were also present: the Hon. Mr. A. O. Lang, Mr. D. G. M. Bernard, Mr. W. E. Clarke (Consulting Committee), Mr. W. L. Farmer (Secretary) and Messrs. W. E. L. Shenton, P. C. Potts, G. W. Barton, S. T. Williamson, J. E. Gomes and Chan King Yee.

After the Secretary had read the notice convening the meeting.

The Chairman said:—Gentlemen, The report and accounts having been in your hands for some time, I will with your permission take them and the report of the Auditors as read, and I trust the proposed distribution of profits and allocations made from the reserve fund will have the approval of shareholders.

The result of the year's working may, I think, be viewed satisfactorily in face of the world-wide depression in trade and the dislocation of coastal business caused by strikes and other economic local disturbances that have taken place during the period under review, and the continued unsettled political condition of China.

As you will gather from the accounts: Hailuogang, which was purchased in 1920 to take the place of Hailan, has been sold as it was found that she was too expensive to run profitably, and advantage was taken of what must be considered as an extremely good offer to dispose of her. The amount, appearing in the profit and loss account, as loss on her sale is a book loss only, as a good proportion of the amount realised still remains in stock and should exchange prove favourable this loss will be minimized or wiped out.

Since the closing of the accounts the Taipei (renamed Hailuogang) has been purchased at a moderate figure and, as she is economical in working and has fast speed, with the additional passenger accommodation that has been installed, she should prove a useful addition to the Company's fleet either for its regular trade or for chartering purposes.

The agreement with the lessee of the foreshore rights expires in 1927 and an opportunity of purchasing these rights having occurred, the General Managers, with the approval of the Consulting Committee, have taken advantage of this as this ownership of the Wharf is of vital importance to the Company's interests and, moreover, it is a valuable asset. A portion of the cost of purchase appears in the past year's accounts under the heading of "Additions made during the year," and in this connection I may state that the East side of the Wharf has been sublet at a good rental for 3 months with the prospect of an extension of the lease.

Regarding the outlook for the current year, although the terrible disaster to the Port of Swatow in August temporarily disorganised trade with that Port, the wonderful recuperative faculties of the Chinese have quickly asserted themselves and business is recovering and the Company's earnings for the first quarter are satisfactory.

I now beg to propose the adoption of the report and accounts as presented and after this has been seconded I will be pleased to answer any question that shareholders may desire to ask.

Mr. W. E. L. SHENTON seconded the proposition which was carried unanimously.

The Hon. Mr. A. O. Lang, Mr. D. G. M. Bernard and Mr. W. E. Clarke were re-elected to the Consulting Committee on the proposition of Mr. Potts, seconded by Mr. Chan King Yee.

Then Hon. Mr. A. R. Lowe and Mr. H. Greenwood were re-elected auditors for the ensuing year at a remuneration of $500 each on the proposition of Mr. WILLIAMSON, seconded by Mr. GOMES.

The Chairman announced that dividend warrants were now ready and could be had on application, and the meeting concluded.

of the labouring class, to the high intelligence, delicate sensibility and unfeigned courtesy of the cultivated official. Though the Occidental might, no doubt, aid the Chinese people greatly in developing their country in an economic sense, there was much the former might learn from a far older and riper civilization, not only in respect to the finer intellectual and aesthetic values but as regards the true worth of a man and his country.

He thanked the Chairman sincerely, and expressed his thanks to the Chinese Chamber of Commerce for the many courtesies shown to him and his countrymen. (Applause).

The proceedings shortly afterwards terminated.

M. PIASTRO'S VIOLIN RECITAL.

Music lovers gathered in large numbers at the City Hall on Wednesday to hear a very delightful concert given by the well-known violinist Mischel Piastro. At first glance it would appear that the programme fell into two parts, first the two items in Sonata by Cesar Franck and Wieniawsky form, and secondly the six smaller pieces. In fact, however, the Wieniawsky Concerto is hardly a Concerto except in name, and its three movements might easily have been quite independent selections for all that one knew; so that actually the division was Cesar Franck and the rest.

Of "the rest," the most familiar items were probably Glinka's "Lark," Chaminade's "Spanish Serenade" and Grieg's "Lonely Wanderer," the last named an ingenious setting by Piastro himself, with some double-stopping entirely in the Grieg manner; though I am not sure if the tuning was altogether an advantage. Many of the items called for a very high degree of executive skill, notably Elgar's "Capricieuse," the Chaminade composition, and above all the fantastic "Ronde des Lutins" of Bazzini with which the concert ended, but M. Piastro overcame their difficulties with consummate skill. His harmonies in particular were without exception amazingly true, and his chromatic runs accurate above criticism.

The Cesar Franck Sonata which opened the concert is on a quite different footing. It is real serious music, formally strict though modern in treatment, calling for no great skill in the way of gymnastics, but for thought and for sympathy and for deep feeling. To those who attended a concert of Mr. Henry One last January, the Sonata is familiar; there is a very clear plot, or theme, or phrase, or what you will, going right through the four movements; the third movement seems to be an ingenious device to give the rapid respiro so that it will be ready to give full attention to the truly superb finale; above all, it is a Sonata for two instruments, not for a violin and accompaniment. If a criticism might be allowed, I personally thought M. Piastro was not so thoroughly at home in this as in the later part of the programme. Whether the acoustics of the room were not yet entirely mastered, or by mistrusted the discretion of the pianist, the fact remains that a few of the sustained notes had a slight harshness that entirely disappeared subsequently. None the less the Sonata was a great delight and was treated in the proper spirit by both executants, M. Piastro's treatment of the many enharmonic modulations being particularly exhilarating.

Mr. Ope's accompaniment was always above reproach. In the Sonata the pianist has almost more to do than the violinist, and here he particularly excelled; but in the more fugitive pieces his playing was always sympathetic and never banal.

OUR NEW ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE CHIEF INSPECTOR KERR PROMOTED.

The many friends of Chief Inspector James Kerr, of the Hongkong Police Force, will be pleased to learn that his promotion to Second Assistant Superintendent of Police has been approved. Confirmation of the appointment was received from Home on Wednesday.

Our new Assistant Superintendent of Police has all but completed 22 years' service with the local Police Force, having joined the Force as a constable on October 27th, 1899. He has probably seen longer service with the Hongkong Government than any other European now in the Service. Assistant Superintendent Kerr was promoted Acting Sergeant after seven years' service and five years' later was raised to the rank of acting Inspector, third-class. On the retirement of Inspector Gourley in 1915 he was appointed Chief Inspector, which post he has held to date, barring a brief period in 1919 when he took over the duties of Acting Assistant Superintendent of Police.

Mr. Kerr's new appointment is an unusual honour, as Assistant Superintendents usually join the Force as Police Cadets. Only in one other case, we believe, has a police constable risen above the rank of Chief Inspector, and that was 30 years ago when Mr. Horspool was promoted to the rank of Deputy Superintendent of Police. Consequently upon Mr. Kerr's new appointment there have been several promotions at the Central Police Station. Inspector Robert McDonald now becomes Chief Inspector and Inspector E. Brown takes over the duties of Divisional Inspector at Central Station.

THE REPUBLIC OF PORTUGAL. TWELFTH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATIONS.

The twelfth anniversary of the Republic of Portugal was celebrated yesterday by the local Portuguese community. The celebrations commenced on the previous night when a dance was held at the Club de Recreio, Kowloon, which was well attended. The Club grounds were festooned with coloured lights, representing the national colours of Portugal, the decorative effect being very pretty. Yesterday morning an "at Home" was held at the new Lusitano Club in Lee House Street. There the Consul-General for Portugal, Mr. Cervera de Albuquerque e Castro, received many guests, including Capt. R. Neville, A.D.C., representing His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, the Acting Colonial Secretary (the Hon. A. G. M. Fletcher), the Attorney-General (Mr. J. H. Kemp, K.C., O.B.E.), and all the foreign consuls and many of the leading business men.

The Consul-General proposed two toasts: "The Republic" and "the King of Great Britain and Ireland" which were enthusiastically responded to.

In the evening a ball was held at Lusitano Club, the interior of the new building being beautifully decorated in honour of the occasion.

STEAM LAUNCH PIRATED.

PASSENGERS FROM TAIPO ROBBED.

Word has come to Hongkong of a piracy on the steam launch Sun On, which operates between Taiipo, in the New Territories, Wong Chuk and Sha-u Chong. The piracy took place at 9.30 a.m. on Wednesday shortly after the vessel had left Wong Chuk. The pirates are believed to have boarded the launch at Taiipo. They numbered about a dozen. At Taiipo they took on board with them a clock. Whilst passing through the Tolo Channel the pirates are said to have extracted from the clock a number of revolvers, which they distributed amongst the gang. Armed with these the robbers soon had the vessel at their mercy. Shots were fired at the ship's guards and they were overpowered and disarmed. Fortunately, nobody was injured. With the guards overpowered, the gang took control of the launch, looted the vessel and robbed the Chinese passengers of their money and jewellery. The pirates' haul is said to have amounted to $5,000. On sighting some small boats, apparently in league with the gang, the robbers ordered the launch to be steered towards them. The loot was transferred to small craft and the pirates made good their escape. The Sun On continued her voyage to Sha-u Chong and on returning to Taiipo the launch master reported the piracy to the police. A search for the gang of robbers by the police has proved unsuccessful. This is the second time the Sun On has been pirated within the past few months whilst on this run. Mr. H. A. Larimer of Hongkong is a part-owner of the vessel.

ARMED ROBBER IN A PORTUGUESE HOUSE.

A daring daylight armed robbery was committed on Wednesday at fifteen minutes to No. 1, Ning Po Street, which is occupied by Mrs. F. da Silva.

Mrs. da Silva was sitting in her room when a knock came to the door. She opened the door and a Chinese forced his way in. The man produced a revolver and issued a number of threats in Chinese. He asked her for the keys of the drawers. Terrified out of her life, Mrs. da Silva gave these up and showed the man where a quantity of money, amounting to $20, was kept in a wardrobe. He extracted the notes and was engaged in searching for the jewellery when the door-bell rang, whereupon the man immediately bolted. Police whistles were blown but when the police arrived the robber had disappeared. It is thought that the person who rang the bell was in league with the robber.

RUSSIA'S WORTHLESS DECLARATIONS TO CHINA.

It appears that all the Soviet Government's declarations to China about the renunciation of the Boxer Indemnity, and all other rights and privileges acquired in China by the old Russian Governments are worthless "scraps of paper," not "juridically valid" because the Chinese Government has left these declarations unacknowledged. In some comments in this column recently on the protests made against the Chinese Government's proposal to pledge the unencumbered portion of the Boxer Indemnity due to Russia, as security for China's new domestic loan of ten million dollars, we recalled a letter addressed by the Soviet Government of Russia, a couple of years ago, definitely refusing to receive from China any further instalment of the Boxer Indemnity. Now to our amazement, we see that the "Extraordinary Plenary Session" of the Russian Social Federal Soviet Republic has addressed to the Chinese, Minister of Foreign Affairs a communication protesting "in the most energetic manner" against any action on the part of the Chinese Government "prejudicing in any way Russian interests and claims [in regard to this indemnity] pending the opening of the Russo-Chinese Conference." This Note admits the previous renunciation of the Russian share of the Boxer Indemnity, but it asserts that this renunciation was made on the express condition that the Chinese Government "would not in any case make payments either to the Russian ex-consuls, or any other persons or Russian organizations setting forth unlawful claims thereto." "Moreover," the Envoy says, "this Note was left unanswered by the Chinese Government, and whereas no juridical relations were established with the Government that had sent it, the position could scarcely have been so construed as to warrant juridical consequences being made to follow from this Note."

"We have a translation of the Soviet Government's Note of 1920 before us, and can find in it nothing to support the assertion that this renunciation of the Boxer Indemnity was made on any express condition. The object of the Note, it is true, was to gain official intercourse with China, but it did not say that the Soviet's repudiation of conquests and special privileges in China was conditional on any agreement. It was simply a declaration of the policy of New Russia. The paragraph in that Note relating to the Boxer Indemnity reads:—

"The Soviet Government decline to receive from China any contribution in regard to the Boxer trouble in 1900, and the Soviet Government are obliged to repeat this for the third time, because they have learnt of our Government, a contribution is still being paid, under the pressure of the Allies, in order to pay the salary and wages and to satisfy the whim (pretence) of the Tsarist Consuls in Peking and the Tsarist Consuls in China. All these slaves have for long ceased to represent the Russian people, but they continue to remain in their places, to deceive the Chinese people. The Chinese people ought to know about it and ought to deport them as deceivers and knaves."

At a later date, the Chinese Government declined to make any further payments to the Russian Minister, and consequently the Legation and Russian Consulates were closed. But the Soviet Government has never, until now, made any claim to the indemnity.

After the great revolution of 1917 the new rulers of Russia declared that they sought a lasting peace with the world at large on the basis of "no annexations and no indemnities," and they invited the Chinese Government to enter into negotiations regarding the annulment of the Treaty of 1900, and also the Peking Protocol of 1900-01 (which concerns the Boxer Indemnity). "In other words to effect the complete return to the Chinese Government of all that has been taken away from China by the Tsarist Government." In the Note of 1920 the Soviet Government says: "These negotiations were continued until March, 1918. Un-expectedly, the Allies suppressed the Peking Government, bought the Chinese officials and press over, and compelled the Chinese Government to have nothing further to do with the Workers' and Peasants' Government." It is important to bear in mind that this was in 1917-1918. The Note of 1920 contained no proposal to discuss the annulment of Treaties, but simply a categorical repudiation of them by the Soviet Government. It specifically repudiated the conquests made by former Governments; abolished all extraterritorial privileges and rights in China, and "returned to China" without compensation the Chinese Eastern Railway and all the mining, forests, gold or other concessions, and it definitely renounced the Boxer Indemnity in the terms above quoted. There was no suggestion that these declarations were conditional. They are expressed in terms of decisions which are final. What the Special Mission to China now represents is that these things were conditional on a letter of acceptance being received from China—and China left the communication unanswered! We are, therefore, now left to wonder whether all the declarations made by the new Government of Russia, following upon the great revolution of 1917, are equally valueless, or conditional on official intercourse, on Russian terms, being established with the nations concerned. It looks as if we may yet see the Soviet Government demanding the resumption of payment of the Boxer Indemnity, the restitution of Russian territorial jurisdiction, and all the other rights and privileges acquired by Russia in China prior to the Russian revolution. In any case the latest Note clearly shows that the word of the Soviet Government must not be accepted at its face value.

The subscriptions to the Bangkok Fund for the relief of sufferers by the typhoon at Swatow amounted to Ticals 200,455.70.

A grand vaudeville entertainment takes place on Saturday night at the Theatre Royal in aid of the many charities for children assisted by the Ministering Children's League.

The public are invited by the Fire Insurance Association of Hongkong to witness a demonstration of the "Fire Foam" patent fire extinguisher on the vacant space in front of the Hongkong Club at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

CONCERT AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

In the Ball-room of Government House, last night, Mr. Eric Rice, assisted by Mrs. Gandy, gave a concert on behalf of the Nanning Fund raised by the Victoria Diocesan Association. The Church Missionary Society has an important mission centre at Nanning and this would have to be closed for lack of funds, but for the Victoria Diocesan Fund, undertaking to raise $2,000 a year towards its maintenance. A large audience assembled in support of this admirable object and H.E. the Officer Administering the Government (Mr. Chaud Severn, C.M.G.) and Mrs. Severn were present.

Mr. Severn explained at the outset that both Mrs. Gandy and Mr. Rice had been ill until just before the concert and Mrs. Gandy had insisted on fulfilling her engagement, although she still had a "temperature." Sympathetic applause greeted this announcement but it must be added that the audience had slight occasion to make the allowances they were asked by His Excellency, in the circumstances, to grant the artists. The concert was an unqualified success. Mrs. Gandy, who has not been heard before in public in Hongkong, proved herself to be an undoubted addition to local talent. She is the possessor of a mezzo-soprano of rare quality and range, and was equally at home in Italian, French and English songs. Her rendering of Italian was very accomplished, and her best song was Coleridge-Taylor's "Life and Death."

Mr. Rice proved himself, once more, a distinguished executant on the piano and carried the principal responsibility for the evening's entertainment on his shoulders. He selected passages from the works of Schumann, Liszt, Scriabine, Chopin and other composers, and the wide range of the pieces chosen, while it was a severe test of the pianist's skill, afforded the audience a most varied and enjoyable musical evening.

LI HOU CHI REQUESTS GOVERNMENT'S AID.

PEKING, October 5th.

Li Hou Chi (Military Governor of Fokien) has telegraphed instructing his local representative to request the Government's aid regarding Hsu Chung Chih's invasion.

The representative complied, after which he proceeded to Paoing and Loyang in order to discuss the matter with Generals Tsao Kun and Wu Pei Fu.

CHINA AND THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

GOOD FEELING TOWARDS DR. WELLINGTON KOO.

LONDON, October 4th.

Mr. Chao Hsin Chu, the Chinese Charge d'Affaires and delegate to Geneva, interviewed by Reuter on his return from Geneva, expressed the Chinese delegation's satisfaction at the re-election of China as a non-permanent member of the Council of the League of Nations, which was partly due to the delegation's resolution regarding the allocation of seats in accordance with the principle of geographical representation. China being naturally selected to represent Asia.

Mr. Chao referred to the good feeling manifested by all the delegates at Geneva towards Dr. Wellington Koo, and described the delegation's efforts as regards opium. He said that China's reservation regarding the maintenance of a naval force sufficient to defend her long coast would be discussed at the international naval disarmament conference to be summoned shortly by the Council of the League.

NEAR EAST CONFERENCE.

A TURKISH REPLY TO M. VENIZELOS.

London, October 5th.

Replying to Mr. Venizelos' letter in the Times (cabled yesterday) Rehad Bey, the representative of Ankara, accuses M. Venizelos of the responsibility for the present imbroglio, and fears that if his suggestions are acted upon the results will be far more terrible than those which followed the adoption of his policy in 1912. Rehad Bey accuses the Greeks of excess and intolerance of other nationalities and asserts that there are less than 100,000 Greeks in Constantinople and East Thrace.

MUSLIM REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT IN INDIA.

The Daily News (Manchester) correspondent says a report from Peshawar shows that the Akhbari movement is rapidly developing into a formidable revolutionary movement. The gravity of the situation has been recently increased by secretive propaganda throughout India, including the Indian provinces. The correspondent understands that the Khilafat committee is inviting the Governments of Ankara, Iraq, Egypt, Persia, and other Moslem countries to send delegates to the Khilafat conference at Gaya, in December.

A message from Calcutta states that the Caliphate committee has decided to present an aeroplane to Mustafa Kemal.

GENERAL HARRINGTON OUTLINES ITS OBJECTS.

CHERBOURG, 4TH OCTOBER.

CONSTANTINOPLE, October 4th.

A communiqué from the British headquarters states:—

"The conference of Mudania opened at three in the afternoon on Tuesday and proceeded satisfactorily. Ismet Pasha re-issued orders to the Nationalist troops to avoid all contact. The Nationalists accepted the principle of the Allied Note."

A communiqué from the French headquarters states:—

"Thanks to the conciliatory disposition on both sides at the meeting of the Allied Generals and Ismet Pasha, an agreement was reached without difficulty as regards the majority of the articles constituting the basis of the question. The meeting ended at eight in the evening and will be resumed at ten in the morning. The Allied Generals in the interval exchanged views regarding non-fundamental objections from the Turkish delegate. The general impression is most satisfactory."

Both communiqués state that a Greek military mission is expected to-day.

Mustapha Kemal has arrived at Ankara.

ALLIED NOTE "OFFICIALLY ACCEPTED IN PRINCIPLE"

LATER.

General Harrington opened the proceedings at Mudania with an address in which he defined the objects of the conference as being, firstly, the cessation of hostilities; secondly, the determination of the line behind which the Greeks should be invited to withdraw, also to arrange details of the evacuation and the handing over of the administration to the Turks; and, thirdly, to pave the way for a peace conference.

The Turks, at the beginning, showed no interest in the details of administration until they had tested the Allies' sincerity in regard to the restoration of Thrace, but when it was pointed out that restoration depended upon acceptance of the Allied Note, Ismet Pasha announced that the Note had been officially accepted in principle. Thereupon M. Charpy drafted a proposal dealing with administration.

POSSIBLE OBSTACLES.

London, October 4th.

No Pressmen were allowed at Mudania, the greatest secrecy being observed. Two obstacles are indicated by British commentators to-day as likely to prevent an immediate settlement of terms for a Turkish-Greek armistice—namely, the Greek refusal to evacuate Thrace and Turkish insistence upon British withdrawal from Chanak. It is declared that the British attitude in the latter respect has not weakened, while, as regards Greece, it is believed that M. Venizelos insists upon the new Government recognising the facts of the situation before he will accept a mandate representing that Government abroad.

AMERICA NOT DISPOSED TO PRESS HARSHLY FOR PAYMENT.

WASHINGTON, October 4th.

In connection with Mr. McKenna's suggestion for the reduction of the principal of foreign debts, Treasury officials are of opinion that general cancellation or wholesale reduction of debts would injure the welfare of the world, creating a lack of confidence in Governmental obligations; but it is indicated that the United States is not disposed to press harshly for the payment of debts.

Payment by Great Britain is regarded as unquestionable, and it is believed that France, along with other more important nations, can be relied on to meet their obligations, "under carefully worked but hardening arrangements."

MR. McKENNA ADDRESSES U.S. BANKERS.

NEW YORK, October 4th.

Addressing the Bankers' Association Convention, Mr. Reginald McKenna, dealing with reparations and international debts, said that Germany's exports barely equalled her imports and furnished no surplus for reparations. He suggested the practicability of Germany selling their foreign assets, which he estimated at a billion dollars, to the German Government, which would hand them over to the Reparations Commission. No other money payments should be demanded from Germany for at least three years. The result would be to arrest the fall of the mark and generally to stabilise exchanges. Britain would be able to pay the interest and sinking fund on her debt to America, but none of the other debts was able to meet more than a small part of their external liabilities. He suggested the postponement of their payments and a conference of creditors and debtors to acquire their exportable surplus and ascertain the amount they could ultimately pay.

P. &amp; O. DIVIDEND.

LONDON, October 4th.

The P. & O. Company has declared a dividend on deferred shares of six per cent. of the past six months, tax free, making 12 per cent. for the year.

In reference to Greek apprehensions of an immediate Turkish occupation of East Thrace, even by gendarmerie, as suggested from Constantinople, it is pointed out in London that the joint Allied Note of the 23rd ult. laid down that the Allies would administer East Thrace pending a settlement at a full conference. Their (the Allies') immediate objective is to secure a Greek withdrawal, and they are unlikely to tolerate a landing of Turkish forces, which would be the swiftest method of setting the Balkans aflame.

The inter-Allied commissions, mentioned in a message of the 20th ult., have already departed, and it is hoped that they will succeed in pacifying the population pending the temporary Allied administration.

HARRINGTON VIRTUALLY REFUSED TO DELIVER AN ULTIMATUM.

LONDON, October 4th.

The Manchester Guardian says that when Parliament meets the Independent Liberals will demand papers covering the dangerous sixteen days since the 15th ult. It alleges that the attitude of the British Government completely changed after the Greek revolution, resulting in the statement of the 20th ult. about an ultimatum to Kemal, but General Harrington virtually refused to deliver the ultimatum, and was supported therein by Admiral Beek and the High Commissioner, Sir Horace Rumbold. The Independent Liberals consider that General Harrington's action saved the Empire from war.

The Guardian, in an editorial, declares that the present situation is obscure and threatening. Public opinion must be roused to prevent the Government, whose temper is in nowise pacific, from yielding to the temptation to cover up past blunders by committing others, which would bring calamity upon the nation.

VENIZELOS REQUESTS U.S. INTERVENTION.

LONDON, October 4th.

It is understood that M. Venizelos called upon the American Ambassador, Col. Harvey, requesting the United States to intervene in the Near East and to use his influence with the Allies to despatch troops to control Thrace until the Christians have been evacuated.

ALLEGED TURKISH BOMBARDMENT OF AMERICAN DESTROYER.

LONDON, October 4th.

A hitherto unconfirmed semi-official message from Athens states that the Turks have bombarded an American destroyer which was shipping refugees from Aivali.

According to a message from Moscow, the Near Eastern situation and the Urquhart-Krasin agreement are blamed for Lenin's return to work in defiance of medical advice.

CRITICAL POSITION IN BRITISH COALFIELDS.

MEN WANT HIGHER WAGES.

LONDON, October 4th.

A critical position has arisen in the coalfields. Despite the temporary revival of the export trade owing to the strike in America the coalowners declare that nearly £2,000,000 were lost in the fifteen months since Government control ended. The average miners' wages have fallen to between 40 and 50 per cent. above the 1911 figure.

Mr. Frank Hodges has declared that the wages are 60 points below the cost of living, and the miners suggest an extra three shillings per ton on the pithead price of coal in order to secure a living wage.

The owners do not agree that the men are generally so badly off as represented. They contend that there is no revenue to provide better wages and that a further reduction in railway transport charges is the only way to revive the trade.

The Executive of the Miners' Federation is discussing the matter in London to-day and will submit proposals to the National Coal Board to-morrow.

"THE REBIRTH OF A NATION."

AUSTRIA'S REHABILITATION.

GENEVA, October 4th.

The rebirth of a nation was the keynote of speeches at a public meeting of the League of Nations unanimously approving the plan cabled on the 1st inst. for the financial reconstruction of Austria. The unbounded cordiality of the delegates, the public applauding consistently, and the sympathetic speeches indicated that the problem had finally received solution to the general satisfaction of Austria and the whole of Europe.

Earl Balfour was delighted at the League's solution, and hoped that Austria would again become a great factor in European civilisation.

GAMBLING IN MARKS.

ESTIMATED AMERICAN AND BRITISH LOSSES.

NEW YORK, October 4th.

The New York World estimates that ten-million American speculators have invested since the war $240,000,000 in German paper money, which to-day is worth not more than $14,000,000. British losses from the same cause are estimated at £170,000,000.

ANOTHER SLUMP EXPECTED.

LONDON, October 4th.

In London, German marks have slumped to 9.40. Another low record is anticipated shortly as a sequel to unrestricted inflation. Commercial transactions with Germany are becoming increasingly difficult.

TRANS-ATLANTIC AIR LINERS

ANGLO-AMERICAN PROJECT.

LONDON, October 4th.

Trans-Atlantic air-liners, 900ft. long, with capacity for a hundred passengers and a speed of a hundred miles per hour, luxuriously equipped, are features of plans drafted by a wealthy American corporation now being canvassed in London with a view to securing British co-operation.

It is suggested that the scheme might be run in conjunction with Commander Burney's scheme for a service between Britain, India, and Australia, which, if consummated, would thus link up three-quarters of the globe.

STRIKES AT AMSTERDAM.

AMSTERDAM, October 4th.

A partial strike has broken out at this port. At present only a few hundred are involved, but it is feared that the strike will spread.

All the Employers' Federations in the cigar industry have decided to close the factories at the end of the week if the workmen do not accept a 48-hour week and a five per cent. reduction in wages.

The number of strikers has increased to two thousand. There are no disorders, but the police have been reinforced in the neighbourhood of the port.

WORLD PEACE CONFERENCE.

LABOUR INVITATION TO ALL KINDRED BODIES.

AMSTERDAM, October 4th.

The International Federation of Trade Unions, claiming to represent twenty-million workers, has summoned a world peace conference for December 10th, to which all peace, co-operative, and Labour organisations, including the rival Internationalists, are invited.

GRUESOME DISCOVERY ON LAMMA ISLAND.

SIX CHINESE FOUND MURDERED.

WHOLE FAMILY WIPED OUT.

A gruesome discovery was made on Lamma Island yesterday morning: six Chinese, comprising one family, were found murdered on a fishing boat. The terrible affair is believed to have been carried out during the night of the 3rd and 4th inst. and from what can be gathered the tragedy was enacted in one of the few stone houses on the island. It is believed that the inmates of the house were taken out of the house one by one, foully done to death and the bodies placed on a fishing boat belonging to the head of the murderous family. Their nefarious work completed, the murderers filled the small craft with heavy stones and shipped her to sea. The bottom of the fishing boat was braced in several places and it was left to sink. Had the murderers' plans worked out as expected, the whole family would have simply disappeared and probably nothing further would have been heard of them, but the boat only became water-logged and failed to sink. With the incoming tide the floating mortuary drifted on to the island—about three miles from where the lonely stone house stands—and in searching for the missing family along the beach the police made their horrible discovery.

THE DISCOVERY OF THE BOAT.

The boat was found high and dry on the beach. It presented an unusual spectacle. On top of the main hatch, battened down and made doubly secure with ropes, were a number of huge boulders, some of which weighed a hundred-weight. The hatch is about four-and-a-half feet square and in this small space were discovered the bodies of five Chinese, comprising two women, a Chinese youth, a small girl and a baby boy about two years old. In another compartment, about one foot wide and just to the fore of the hatch, was discovered the remains of the father of the family. This compartment was not covered with a hatch, but the body was covered with boulders and as a result was badly mangled. The bodies were taken charge of by the police and last night they were removed to the Kowloon Mortuary. It is thought by the police that the members of the family were strangled, but this will not be known until after the usual post-mortem examination.

THE SCENE OF THE CRIME.

There are not many clues left to work upon and the story collected by our representative at a late hour last night is in parts open to correction. The murdered family lived at So Ko Wan village, Lamma Island. The village is composed of two houses and a temple. The two dwelling-houses stand about 300 yards apart. The inhabitants of the island do not probably number more than a few hundred. The house in which the murdered family lived was used as a shop and was well known to the numerous fishing junks of the surrounding waters as a supply depot. They were last seen alive by the people of the neighbouring house on the late afternoon of the 3rd.

A nephew of the murdered man had arranged to meet one of the family at Aberdeen on the morning after the murder. The appointment was not kept and in consequence of this he visited Lamma Island and found the house deserted and the interior in a state of disorder. He made a report to the police and investigations were set on foot. At first sight the appearance of the house led to suspicions of an armed robbery and that the occupants had been kidnapped. The place appeared to have been ransacked but what was taken from the habitation was later found tied in bundles on the fishing boat. This leads one to believe that the robbery must have been a "fake" and that the real motive for the murder must have been revenge. On this theory there are two or three clues to work upon and the two more important are that one of the murdered women was the wife of another man who is still living. This may have been the cause of the murder. Another theory is that the murdered head of the family is said to be in some way connected with pirates and armed robbers. He may have quarrelled with his confederates.

The brutal murders are believed to be the work of at least 12 to 20 men. Up to the present the police have made no arrests. Lamma Island is not "policed." It has a Police Station at Yang Shu Wan, but this is not tenanted.

FRENCH CABINET CHANGE.

PARIS, October 4th.

"THE SHIP WITH WINGS."

A GREAT RIVER AIR-PORT SCHEME.

Londoners know they have an aeroplane station somewhere "out in the wilds," but from Croydon, but the knowledge is vague, impersonal, uninspiring, writes Mr. Harry Harper, Technical Secretary of the Civil Aerial Transport Committee. They rarely see anything of this aerial traffic they often read about. Yet speak to them of a great London air-port on the Thames, actually on the river flowing through their city and within a stone's throw, say, of Westminster Bridge, and their faces light up with interest, and they are full of eager questions.

Never, in fact, will the imaginations of Londoners be really and truly touched until they have made for a real thing that machines which fly have come to stay as dependable, everyday vehicles of transport, until winged ships rise gracefully with their loads from the waters of the Thames, and come gliding back, from cities far-distant, their holds full of mails and urgent merchandise.

Fortunately, there is something better to go on, now, than any mere vision of a great Thames-side air-port. There is actually a question of time and of no great length of time either. After recent instructive tests, in rising from and alighting on both the Thames, in London and the Seine in Paris, with a British amphibious-type aeroplane, which can—when ever it needs to do so—lower wheels beneath its hull and alight also at a land tarmac, the Air Ministry have obtained Treasury sanction for a further series of experiments which will be a prelude to the practical establishment, and commercial operation by night as well as day, of a regular Thames-side aerial port or station.

Previously the "amphibian" has alighted on the water just above Westminster Bridge, and, when it has been necessary to come ashore, has lowered pneumatic tyres and "climbed" up a conveniently placed piece of scaffolding, but the exact location of London's permanent river air-station has yet to be decided. It is largely in fact to settle such a point, which is bound up with technical questions of aerial navigation, and of getting on and off a river under varying conditions, that the forthcoming additional tests are to be made. But, such details apart, the important thing is that London is actually to have this river air-station.

At the same time, too, the Paris authorities are moving energetically in the direction of a similar station on the Seine.

Simplicity, and an absence of all fuss and bother, will mark the departure of Continental voyagers from the Thames air-station. Jumping into a taxi cab at the doors of their hotels, they will drive in a few minutes to the air-station, just as they would to a railway station. Moored to the landing-stage, so that they may straight into the spacious saloon, will be the flying-ship; and, aloft in a few minutes, and moving at more than twice the speed of land transport, this swift vessel of the air will have reached Paris and glided down within only a little more than two hours of leaving London. It is considered, in fact, that time-schedules will be so expedited, thanks to the establishment of a Thames station, that in two and a-half hours or only a few minutes more a passenger in haste will be able to make an actual door-to-door journey between any building in the heart of London and another which is his objective in the centre of Paris.

When this can be done—and there is no reason, now, why it should not be accomplished in the quite immediate future—the sheer speed of aerial transport, unhindered by makeshift land congestions, will, for the first time, show what it is capable of; and, with the influx of business passengers which such super-swift, trouble-free travel should bring, it will be possible to put on the Thames-Seine air service a fleet of really large, powerful, multi-engined "amphibian" machines, carrying not five or six passengers—the limit with present types—but having fine, luxurious saloons seating twenty-five, thirty, or, if need be, as many as fifty passengers.

With the seats of the day, "amphibians" will fill, and the Thames air-station teeming with traffic, there is no reason why the London-Paris airfare should not be equivalent to that charged for the infinitely longer journey by boat and train. It should be possible, that is to say, to travel to the basis of a single air-fare of, say, £2 4s., with return ticket at the price of £7 7s.

Already, as a hint of what the "ship with wings" can do, there is the officially-aided project of the seaplane service which will link Southampton with Cherbourg and Havre. At the moment this service is to have its terminal at Southampton, the connection with London being by rail; but with a proper Thames air-station, illuminated at night for the benefit of machines departing and arriving during hours of darkness, and commercial "amphibians" available in adequate numbers, flying routes leading to various parts of Europe will have terminals not at sea-coast centres, but right here in the heart of London. And the amphibian, as I have said, will have that wonderful capacity, possessed by no other transport vehicle, of picking up or setting down commercial loads not merely at river or sea stations; but also at trade points which may be far inland.

The ship with wings is evolving. Experimental designs are promising; aerodynamically the type offers scope for a real, substantial, commercial success. To-day, if one may borrow the term from the sea, the "kinks" are being laid, winked, multi-engined cargo-carrying ships, which will raise and fly with loads to be reckoned in many tons. The day of really commercial, heavier-than-air flying ships—pioneers of our future fleets of British aerial cargo-carriers—is dawning.

The time has come—is in truth overdue—to found a British mercantile air marine, in the real, constructive meaning of these words. Winged monsters of 50, 100, and even 150 tons, are now in design—all-weather craft, requiring only to go into dock, like a ship, for occasional overhaul and repair. In one plan the writer has just been examining a great aeroplane will be built of such seasoned wood wings and all that the machine will disband sheds of hangars, and will be capable of remaining out of doors from one month's end to the other. A big engine room will be installed in the fuselage, with as many as four very powerful engines; driving screws by means of improved gearing. Another big craft, under construction in this country as a flying troopship, is to be adapted for carrying troops.

SIR J. C. BOSE'S NEW DISCOVERY.

SOLUTION OF SAP MYSTERY.

What is the machinery by which the tree forces the water up, sometimes to a height of several hundred feet, and what is the source of its power? It is a question that has attracted the attention of all leading physiologists for the last hundred years, and has been given up as insoluble. Sir J. C. Bose's recent discoveries have offered the fullest explanation of the phenomenon.

The problem ultimately resolved itself into devising means to get access to the smallest element of life, the individual cell or the "life atom," a concentration of which constitutes the living organism. Our final aim, then, is to obtain an insight into the diverse manifestations of life by tracing them in the throbbing activities of the individual cell. At first the attempt appeared hopeless, for it was impossible to see what was taking place in the interior of the tree, and, secondly, even if it were possible, the highest power of the microscope was inadequate to detect any change that took place in the cell during its propulsive activity. In fact, the rate of change involved was less than a millionth of an inch per second. The detection of such ultra-microscopic action in the cell might well appear beyond the range of possibility; but this is not so entirely hopeless as it has been assumed to be, for the magnetic crescentograph invented by Sir J. C. Bose enables one to obtain a magnification from ten to a hundred million times. This would be sufficient to detect not merely cellular, but even atomic movements. The difficulty does not, therefore, arise from want of sensitiveness of the apparatus, but from the practical impossibility of attaching a single cell to the crescentograph.

The difficulty of securing contact with an individual cell was overcome by the invention of the electric probe, which is gradually thrust in step by step from the epidermis outside to the pith in the interior. When the probe comes in contact with the active cell it sends out electric signals which are automatically recorded by the galvanometer. The up stroke of the galvanometer record indicates expansion and absorption of sap, while the down stroke indicates expulsive contraction. It is thus found that the cells in the active xylem are in a state of throbbing pulsation, expanding and contracting by turns; there is, moreover, a definite sequence of pulsation from below upwards. Each cell during its phase of expansion absorbs water from below, and expels it upwards during the phase of contraction. The ascent of sap thus takes place by the co-ordinated activity of a series of vertically situated cellular pumps.

THE "HEART-BEAT" OF THE PLANT.

The stream of material for building up or assimilation in the animal is maintained by the pumping action of the heart. A similar function is discharged by the pulsating tissue which extends throughout the length of the tree. The records of the heart-beats of animals and plants exhibit astonishing similarities. Strokes, temperature changes and various drugs affect the heart-beats of the animal and the plant in a precisely similar manner.

The Manchester Guardian in its leading article on this remarkable discovery says that the process of ascent has hitherto been "supposed to be largely a mechanical one, so that to some extent the tree would absorb water in the same inert way that blotting paper takes ink. The result of Sir J. C. Bose's recent experiments is to show that in the progress of the sap a living organism is at all the time actively lifting the water. From a root to the topmost leaf is found a wonderful series of infinitely small cells, each capable of filling and contracting. Through this series the sap passes from the lowest cell to the highest each cell filling with sap and then contracting in order to hand on its burden to its next neighbour in the chain. It is a wonderful example of the perfect instrument, but hardly less wonderful is the electric probe, and registering apparatus which Sir J. C. Bose devised in order to measure the cellular changes which amount to less than a millionth of an inch in a second. If man is not capable of perceiving the machinery itself, it is a sufficiently marvellous instrument which enables him to watch that machinery at work."

With regard to the recent reports in the Chinese and foreign press to the effect that the Peking postal sorters had made certain demands and were prepared to walk out on strike if these demands were not met, Reuter's correspondent learns authoritatively that a few disgruntled sorters, imbued with Bolshevik aspirations, anonymously sent in demands accompanied by a statement that a meeting was being held the following day. This meeting was not held and no interruption of work occurred. Thus the movement completely failed.

In a slightly different form, and with more room amidships, to the task of aerial cargo-carrying.

Already, too, air-liners are carrying from the Continent to London cargo which justify the description of regular aerial "freights," in the way that term is understood at sea. Recently, for example, one goods-carrying aeroplane was chartered to bring hundreds of cases of champagne—a full load for the machine—from France through to London; and it will not be long before, at ports like Marseilles, big "air transports" will be up and running, weighing many tons, and bringing their loads to the Thames air-station in a single night's flying.

Special lighthouses, flooding the night sky from the horizontal to the vertical, are beginning already to go up along European aerial routes. The first permanent British air-beacon is, for example, at the moment of writing, being installed at Tatum, on the aerial line between London and the coast; while another large navigation light for night flying, shining its rays out across the Channel, is to be erected at Cranbrook, in Kent.

From the point of view of carrying urgent merchandise through the air, the British Empire is geographically, almost ideal. The vast trade routes, thousands of miles of them, are there, tapping great centres of supply. All that is needed, now, to lay out once the foundation of a commercial marine, is vigorous exploitation by private enterprise going hand-in-hand with Government.

PARIS FASHION NOTES.

[FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT, MABEL RAMSAY.]

PARIS, August 25th.

The scene in the evening at the casino at Deauville is surely calculated to make the righteous throw up their hands in horror, and to make those who predict that a wholesale revolution is in store for the world advance the date of its arrival somewhat—if such people ever venture into such a place. If one stopped to think of the amount being spent in food and wines in the vast dining-room, of the amount represented by the toilettes and jewels of the women, not to mention the amount being squandered at the Baccarat tables, where thousand-franc notes are thrown on in bundles, one's brain would reel.

Judging by what one sees here, one would say that chinchilla and ermine are to be the two fashionable furs for this Winter, notwithstanding the fact that these are the two most expensive furs to be bought and can surely not come within the reach of any but millionaires. At Deauville one acquires this impression, because nearly every second woman is wearing, with studied negligence, a coat of either chinchilla or ermine, the price of which would have constituted a princely ransom in bygone days. The new shape seems to be that of the cape finished with a straight collar, rather wide and gathered in at the neck. Coats are quite long and most of them have no sleeves. These in chinchilla are lined with a rich brocade or figured material, whilst those in ermine are invariably with thick plain black satin. Another distinguishing note belonging to the ermine coats is that the body and collar are made with tail-less skins, these were black things being reserved and added as a fringe to the edge of the collar.

There are other coats, in other furs, of course, but they are in such a minority that one hardly notices them, still less remembers them. Even in the daytime, ermine makes its appearance at every turn in the form of short jackets, like the cloth and satin cloxy ones that have been the rage for so long. When ermine is not possible, then white rabbit takes its place. These jackets are the same in cut as the cloth and cloxy ones have always been—that is, plain and straight, inclined to flare out slightly at the hips, and with a plain or square-cut collar. The lining is nearly always black, like the ermine evening coats, although occasionally one sees models that are lined with a brilliant scarlet satin. Although the fashion for the ultra-long waist line is dying out, low belts or girdles are worn with these jackets so that their fulness is drawn into the figure below the normal waistline. Worn with a white pleated skirt and a dainty blouse, they are smart enough to make every woman with a sense of coquetry long for one.

Chinchilla is worn less in the day-time than ermine and even in the form of a short jacket. When it is seen it is as a collar, to a cape or in bands round the hem, cuff and collar of a jacket, in white or black cloxy, but never as an entire garment.

Of the gorgeous array of evening cloaks worn, what was even more effective than a whole coat of chinchilla was a model in the new satin, which was launched at the Grand Prix and has since taken hold of public fancy under the name of "satin freize." This is more shiny than cloxy and far more supple, and in the evening, when the lights play on the different facets of its crushed surface, the effect is striking enough at first sight to take one's breath away. There were one or two models in material of this kind in a beautiful silver gray, with a deep band of chinchilla round the hem and other bands round the cuffs and collar. The form of these coats—which is a variation on the new cape form—was that of a fairly narrow skirt part joined on to a blousing upper part, and both gathered in at the waist.

As well as these coats, there were other models equally gorgeous in "rich" brocades and heavy cloth of gold and silver that seemed to have escaped from some tale of Oriental splendour. They were all made either in the new cape form or in the other variation I have just described. Some of them had a thick roll round the top for a collar, whilst others had a kind of shawl cape which was gathered and tucked under, so that the effect was more like that of a ruff.

Under these magnificent cloaks were worn gowns just as magnificent. The great vogue seems to be for silver, whether as an entire dress or as a trimming. Wonderfully effective were the gowns in silver lace and the gowns in net, so heavily embroidered with silver spangles and narrow strips of silver tinsel that barely an inch of the foundation was visible. Equally striking were the gowns in cloth of gold, the gowns that wore a mass of beaded designs from top to hem, and the black jet gowns that added their sinuous note to the kaleidoscopic scene of brilliance. Even Youth had resorted to silver as a trimming, and one of the most charming frocks to be seen was worn by a budding young South American; it was a mass of billowing white tulle, embroidered at intervals with big floral motifs worked in silver strips. A wreath of silver leaves and berries in the hair completed the general effect of elegance.

Colours are not so popular as they have been for evening wear, although a great deal of almond green is to be seen. This shade, however, with an occasional royal blue or deep crimson imposing its brilliant note was about the only colour note to be remarked. Silver is the dominating craze of the moment, and after this, comes white, with, perhaps, black as a follower up. But if any woman wants to be quite sure of being in the fashion this winter, I should certainly advise her to provide herself with a silver gown and a chinchilla and satin freize coat for evening wear, and an ermine jacket for the day-time.

The ruin, as in most places in Europe this summer, has been far too frequent a visitor at Deauville, and it has not had the good manners to keep away even on race-day. One of the results of its visit last Sunday was to bring forth a crop of the most delightful leather coats and jackets it is possible to imagine. These are so smart that one can easily imagine a woman with one of them in her possession praying for rain just so that she can come out and parade in it. They are made rather plain and cut on straight lines, a wide belt drawing them at the waist. Sometimes stibings are added, but, as a rule, the material is left without this trimming. The whole cut and style are sufficiently ordinary to call forth no comment whatever, but what is so smart is the effect of the leather itself. It seems to be made up in three shades only—black, raven blue and claret, with occasionally a white, and it is equally effective in all of these colours, especially if a plain type of smart hat fashioned of the same leather is added. Short jackets, also, are made in this material. One of the the smartest women on the course wore with a plain black skirt, one of these jackets in black leather lined with scarlet silk and finished with a band of black silk braid edged with scarlet beads; a close-fitting hat in black leather, lined under the brim with scarlet silk completed a toilette so original and smart that, every one turned round to gaze on its wearer.

The King of Spain, who is the great attraction of the moment at Deauville, was wearing an ordinary sac suit in indigo serge with a white pin stripe running through it, with this, he wore dark tan shoes, a soft striped shirt, a knitted silk tie in blue and bottle-green stripes, and a velvet hat in the same shade of green, which he spent his time raising to the hosts of people who flocked to pay him homage in the vice royal box.

SCOTTISH LETTER.

LORD ROSEBURY.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

EDINBURGH, August 30th.

Lord Rosebery's gift of Mentmore to his son brings thoughts of sadness to those who knew him or followed his career during his prime. Not that his surrender of the great palace is less than perfectly sensible, considering his age and the state of his health. Still one cannot help remembering him as a sort of superman greatly favoured in all his fortunes, "who got all that he asked for." But only for a time. Nothing of the glory lasted. He turned against politics with disgust after he had had the ball at this foot. His wife, who meant so much to him, died. His younger son, who was himself over again, fell in battle. His elder son's married life was a failure, and it is a bachelor establishment that goes to Mentmore with Lord Dalmeny.

An eloquent incident sticks in the memory. It was at Dalmeny in 1910. A friend, in the course of some talk, remarked, "When you were Prime Minister—"

"Excuse me," snapped Lord Rosebery, "I was never Prime Minister: I was the official receiver of a bankrupt Government."

Another reminiscence is of Lord Dalmeny's marriage in 1900. The bride, a tall, slender girl of nineteen, looked very lovely that spring day, and one never saw an expression of more absolute satisfaction on the face of any man than Lord Rosebery's held as he gazed at his son and his son's wife.

The Lady Dalmeny of that afternoon is now Mrs. Robert Brassey. She is the younger daughter of the late Lord Henry Grosvenor, a cousin on the one side of the Duke of Westminster and on the other of Captain Michael Wemyss. Her Christian name is Dorothy, in that of her ancestress, Mrs. Jordan, in all but name the wife of King William IV.

Lord Dalmeny is likely to be the last of his name. He may not himself assume the style of Viscount Mentmore, as he is entitled to do, but there is not much doubt that when he becomes Earl of Rosebery his son will choose to be known as Viscount Mentmore. The real second title of the Earl of Rosebery is neither Lord Dalmeny nor Viscount Mentmore, but Viscount Inverkeithing. With Inverkeithing, however, the family has not now any connection.

CAUSE OF THE LOCHMARKEE TRAGEDY.
The Scottish Board of Health, in the result of a preliminary inquiry, states that there can be no reasonable doubt that the deaths of the eight persons at Lochmarkee in Western Ross-shire, six visitors on an angling holiday and two ghillie boatmen, "was due to potted meat or paste containing the toxin produced by the bacillus 'botulinus'." A further inquiry which is to be public, has been ordered by the Lord Advocate. This bacillus has been known since 1896, when a Belgian scientist found it in sausages. The Lochmarkee case, however, is the first recognised outbreak in Great Britain, and so far as this country is concerned, the inquiry is a new one. But the infection has been found in America, not only in meat substances, but also in preserved vegetables and fruit, and apparently in fresh beef. The disturbing factor is that the infection may be present without showing any obvious sign, so that detection must be very difficult. In these circumstances it is comforting to be told that the disease is exceedingly rare, and that hitherto it has not been recognised as the cause of death in many human beings. About 150 cases of the appearance of the poison are recorded, and in 111 cases resulted in death.

NEW VESSELS FOR THE FAR EAST.

Messrs. William Denny & Bros., Dumbarton, have launched the twin-screw steamer Shanghai Maru, which they have built for the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, of Tokyo, for service between Nagasaki and Shanghai. The vessel is a sister ship to the Nagasaki Maru, which was launched from the same yard in March, and is now approaching completion. The Shanghai Maru is 335 ft. in length, 54 ft. in breadth, 32 ft. in depth to awning deck, and of about 5,500 tons gross. She will have accommodation for 150 first-class and 200 third-class passengers. The public rooms for the first class will be large and handsome and will include dining-saloon, social hall, smoke-room, and veranda cafe. The propelling machinery will consist of single-reduction geared turbines of the Parsons type, supplied with steam by ten Scotch boilers worked at a pressure of 200 lb.

The Clan Macfarlane, a steamer built for the Clan Line, and intended for their Indian and general trade, has been launched by the Ayrshire Dockyard Co. at Irvine. She is 415 feet by 53 feet 3 in., by 36 feet, about 6,000 tons gross and 9,000 tons d.w. The Caledon Shipbuilding and Engineering Co., Dundee, have launched the Perseus, of 13,000 tons, and she was christened by Miss Wortley, daughter of the late Mr. H. B. Wortley, one time partner of the firm of Messrs. Alfred Holt & Co., for whom the vessel was built. The Perseus, which will trade in the Far East, is a vessel of 500 ft. in length by 62 ft. by 42 ft. 6 in. She will be fitted with twin-screw turbine engines at Dundee.

THE LATE DAVID J. JARDINE OF APPLE-GARTHE.

The death is announced of Mr. David Jardine of Applegarth, only son of the late Mr. James Jardine of Dryfeholm, and cousin of Sir Robert Buchanan Jardine, Bart. of Castlehill. He inherited enormous landed property from his father, who about 15 years before his death (though already a large landowner) acquired from the Marquis of Queensberry the extensive estates of Tinwald and Torphorwald, and Applegarth estate from Sir Alexander Jardine, Bart. In 1887 Mr. Jardine married Mary Angela, second daughter of the late Sir Charles Tiltson Bright, of Banner Cross and Carbrook Hall, Yorkshire, by whom and an only daughter he is survived. An only son, Ronald James, a Flight Lieutenant, was accidentally killed while in the Air Force during the war. Mr. Jardine was 75 years of age.

Mr. Jardine travelled extensively, spending four years in India shooting big game. He constantly supported racing in this country, and for 30 years had horses in training with Peacock at Middleham. He won no classic races, but took several important handicaps in his time. His Refractor won the Royal Hunt Cup at Ascot in 1899, and he had a useful thoroughbred in Sir Harry, which, in addition to winning many races of minor importance, won the Great Yorkshire Handicap at Doncaster and the Northumberland Plate. Other horses to win for him were Macdoine and Gardenhurst, of which the last named won the Cumberland Plate, the Ayrshire Handicap, and several other events.

A SCOTTISH CHAPBOOK.

England and Ireland have their national literary and critical journals. Why should Scotland have none? One cannot say that "Chambers," "Blackwoods," or "The Edinburgh Review" reflect the Scottish mind and character. If one dare to say that the Scots have no distinct personality and no literary gifts, the very thistles of the fields would cry out in remonstrance. Therefore one hears with interest of the appearance this week of a new literary monthly in Scotland called "The Scottish Chapbook." It will contain poetry, criticism, and so on, all written by Scotsmen. The editor of the new venture, Mr. C. M. Grieve, already writes with success that annual anthology of Scots poetry, "Northern Numbers."

SCOTTISH PROFESSIONAL GOLFERS.

Scotland has for long been the happy hunting ground of wealthy clubs in search of the young and promising professional. We produce the talent, but fail to retain it, a not surprising fact when the circumstances are considered. The young professional, if he is to rise to fame, must have encouragement, and that encouragement, it is obvious, must come from the club members. Deprived of the opportunity of developing his game, and with little time available for practice, Scotland's Jimmy Bruids in the making look elsewhere for their chance. They are certainly not overburdened with opportunities in their native land, and when the call comes, be it from England or from overseas, well, who can blame the lads if they pack up and go where wealth awaits the topnotchers where they at least get the chances denied them at home. The time may come when better prospects will be offered to them in Scotland, but that time is not yet, and so, as J. H. Taylor says, when writing of the home outlook for the British professional, we need not wonder that the tide is ever flowing westwards. In America, says Taylor, when a youth shows signs of promise, he is given every possible encouragement by the club members. "There is no narrow line drawn," he declares, "between the member and the professional such as exists at home. He is there to serve, but his service is usually made one of pleasure rather than a task." And, he adds, "the financial rewards are much superior."

MISCELLANEA.

Raeburn's portrait of Sir Walter Scott, which was bought lately at the Burdett-Coutts sale for £9,560, has been secured by a New York connoisseur, Mr. J. Horace Harding.

Sir James Orlinton Browne suggests that there should be placed at Burn's Mausoleum a Burns' garden, containing flowers loved by the poet and mentioned in his works.

The Duke of Atholl, on behalf of the United Lodge of Freemasons of England, presented to the Royal National Lifeboat Institution at Peterhead a new motor lifeboat as a thanksgiving for the safe return from Canada of its Grand Master the Duke of Connaught.

A letter addressed to "Brew, Falkirk," was delivered without delay to its proper designation—not a brewery, but the Labour Exchange. The spelling denoted the lady writer's disclaim for orthodox spelling, but is also perhaps her form of protest against the introduction of foreign words into every-day language.
